guide and director

FRED H. CRONINGER, Principal

friend of pupil and teacher

Every day of the school year sees a large number of students and faculty pouring into the office of the principal, Mr. Fred H. Croninger. Advice, encouragement, recommendations, changes in programs, and a thousand and one other things are requested and granted.

This seemingly tireless man, with calm demeanor, infinite patience, and tact, deals with student and faculty problems efficiently and speedily. Respected and admired by all with whom he comes in contact, he is a valuable friend and counselor.

For thirteen years Mr. Croninger has been principal of Central High School. Previous to that he served as teacher and then head of the mathematics department in the school. He served as acting superintendent of the Fort Wayne public schools from November, 1931, to June, 1932, after the death of Supt. L. C. Ward.

Central's principal is an ardent booster of extra-curricular activities. While a student at Heidelberg College he participated in debating and publication work. He is also a basket-ball player of no mean ability. He received an A.B. degree from Heidelberg College and an A.M. from Columbia University.

central's best citizens

BABETTE DESSAUER,

open the portals of the school to show you its inner life, its opportunities and achievements

The two members of this year's graduating class considered the best citizens are George McKay and Babette Dessauer. Their names were engraved on the McCloud Citizenship cup. In addition, each will receive the Wheel and Distaff medal, awarded this year for the first time by the D.A.R. to the outstanding students in each city high school.

Best citizen nominations are made by clubs and final selection by the Student Council. Scholarship, character, leadership, attitude, and achievement are considered. This is one of Central's highest honors.

Proving their excellence in inter-school competition, five members of the music department were named winners in the state music contest held at Crawfordsville. Betty Arnold, piano; Kathleen Bolyard, cello; Joseph Ostrowski, Irven Jensen and Marguerite Baker, violin, represented Central in the state contest held at Bloomington, May 8.

With an enviable record behind them, the orchestra is continually building for greater conquests. Last year, in the annual contest held at Columbia City, Central's orchestra of 22 placed in the First Division of the State Contest along with Elkhart's orchestra, numbering about 80. This attests the ability and untiring effort of our conductor, Mr. Gaston Bailhe, who is also conductor of the Fort Wayne Civic Symphony Orchestra, of which five members are advanced musicians of the Central orchestra.

Mr. Bailhe, who was trained in the great Paris Conservatory of Music and is an artist in his own right, is well fitted for the task. Through his determination to upbuild the orchestra, classes have been started in violin, viola, cello, string bass, oboe, flute, trumpet, cornet, French alto and baritone horns. The students who began in the first classes were advanced enough to play in the orchestra the second semester. Due to this plan, the orchestra more than doubled its size. It entered the contest in Huntington, playing Hanson's Nordic Symphony, Second Movement.

The orchestra's appearance at the Masonic Temple concert, January 10, was appreciated by the members of the Eastern Star. Earlier in the season the orchestra and the glee club gave a Christmas concert. The boys and girls united in this program, although their classes are separate. Handel's famous oratorio, The Messiah, was beautifully sung.

Another division of the Music Department closely related to the girls' glee club is the A'Capella Choir, composed of the best voices of the glee clubs. This organization sang over WOWO last winter, for the Lions' Club, and has appeared at several churches. The boys' glee club is not as active as the girls' because there are fewer members. A novel Mickey Mouse Mix-up dance was given after the Central-Bluffton game. A film of Walt Disney's famous cartoon character was shown on the screen.

With the discontinuation of the Chamber of Commerce music recitals, the outside activity of the musical groups has somewhat declined, although several talented students have continued their work. A trio, composed of Betty Arnold, piano; Marguerite Baker, violin, and Kathleen Bolyard, cello, has been working on a difficult Beethoven trio. This group has appeared on school programs several times and has played for outside organizations among which was the Lion's Club.

There are two string quartettes, one of which is composed of four violinists, Marguerite Baker, Mildred Klopfenstein, Joe Ostrowski, and Irven Jensen. The other just initiated into Central this year, includes Marguerite Baker, first violin; Joe Ostrowski, second violin; Betty Arnold, viola; Kathleen Bolyard, cello.

Harold Gingher, drum major

The division of the music department which is most apparent to the public eye is the band, which was organized in 1923. There has been an especial increase this year in the brass and woodwind sections. However, Mr. Bailhe did not consider the instrumentation good enough to enter the contest at Huntington. Harold Gingher, senior, was elected 1933-34 drum major. The blue and white suits purchased two years ago still look new and peppy at the football and basketball games and in parades.

maid in japan

Gay colors and cherry blossoms abounded at the presentation of "Maid in Japan," the operetta given by the music department last spring. The stage was very attractive, and vivid settings made the audience feel they were in the land of the cherry blossoms. The choruses, made up of the glee clubs of the school, did an excellent piece of work. The dancing, under the direction of Beatrice Clinton, added much to the presentation.

The cast included: Jane Latz, Hanano; Peggy Weaver, Peggy; Dick Millikan, Tom Long; Jim Curran, Hirohito; Louis Long, Bill Wood; Frank Janorschke, Matsuo; Barney Garmire, Yatsubo; Louis Juillard, Manyemon; Joe Deck, a coolie; Margaret Rumbaugh, Nishita; Martha Fox, Ishi; Beatrice and Rosemary Clinton, Carl Derheimer, dancers; Winifred Mertz, Lototo.

This year's operetta was entitled "Up in the Air." The principal cast consisted of Peggy Weaver, Robert Smith, Vivian Rider, Louis Juillard, Toddy Uebelhoer, Isabel Gallardo, Dick Millikan, Bob Butler, Winifred Mertz, and Jim Curran.

This year's Senior-Caldron Vod-Vil, presented February 2, was in the novel form of a "Kaleidoscope." Fifty-five students participated. Tap dancers in gay and colorful costumes predominated, but these acts were offset by a George Burns and Gracie Allen skit, song trios and quartettes, an old-fashioned meller-drammer, other humorous sketches, and a lovely group of song pictures. Brock Cleary was the master of ceremonies, or rather the interlocutory colonel.

The prop room—and guess who?

drama and pageantry

"King's Design" was the name of the 1933 Commencement Day Ritual in which the two cardinal principles, character and leadership predominated. It was written by Mrs. C. T. Lane, head of Central's English department, and directed by Miss Marjorie Suter. The ritual centered about King Alfred, the great Anglo-Saxon leader, whose inspiration and accomplishments have amazed men of a later age. The cast of characters included: St. Hild (Spirit of Central), Anita Scheumann; Alfred the Great, Joe Tucker; Judith, Daughter of a Freeman, Edilou Bailhe; Freeman, Herbert Levy; Cadwallen, a Slave, Paul Kigar; Bishop of Asser, George Koegel; an Earldorman, Ben Falk; Edward, Son of Alfred, Richard Hopper; Ethelgiva, Daughter of Alfred, Neva Williams. The Eight Shining Ones were: Madelyn Weseman, Ernestine Stumpf, Lillian Oetting, Pauline Springer, Sara Bernstein, Marjorie Hanley, Beatrice and Rosemary Clinton. The Rev. James W. Fifield, of the East Congregational Church, Grand Rapids, Michigan, was the commencement speaker.

Three one-act plays were presented by Miss Marjorie Suter, dramatic coach, this year. The first presentation of the dramatic season was "Hearts Enduring." It was a serious play with only two characters. Frank Janorschke played the Crusader and Babette Dessauer was Lady Alice.

The companion play was a comedy, "Tea-Pot on the Rocks", which involves the attempt of two girls to run a tea room successfully. Josephine Woehr played the comic part of the "homebody gone wrong" very nicely. The entire cast of the play was: Daisy, Josephine Woehr; May, Bernadine Stauffer; Roy, Richard Miller; Mrs. Carstairs, Elda Faster; Grocery Boy, William Robbins; Gas Man, Lowell Reed.

The fifteenth annual Christmas play, presented on December 21, was Dickens's well-known story, "The Christmas Carol." Although it was difficult to put on because of the rapid change of scenes and of the dreams, it was beautifully staged and performed. The major parts were taken by Frank Janorschke as Ebenezer Scrooge; Fred Sebring as Scrooge's nephew Fred; the two prologues, Babette Dessauer and Ruth Alice Ream. The others in the cast were: Brock Cleary, William Tilker, Dick Millikan, John Broom, Alfred Falk, Lowell Reed, Ned Hoffman, Dorothy Gray, Louis Julliard, Bernadine Stauffer, Elda Faster, Vivian Rider, Anna Rose Haffner, Ruth Phinney, and James Curran.

"The Boomerang" by Winchell Smith was the vehicle chosen by the class of '34 as its senior play presented on November 17 and 18. The abundant talent was well molded by Miss Marjorie Suter, director, so that the resulting unit was a well earned success.

This rapidly moving modern comedy concerns Dr. Gerald Sumner, Frank Janorschke; Emile, Bill Robbins; Virginia Xelva, Peggy Weaver; Mrs. Creighton Woodbridge, Harriet Fuelber; Budd Woodbridge, Richard Miller; Miriam Sumner, Isabel Gallardo; Grace Tyler, Ruth Alice Ream; Gertrude, Dorothy Gray; Preston Dewitt, Fred Sebring; Maid, Bernadine Stauffer; Old Man, Lowell Reed. The party ensemble of the second scene was composed of Josephine Woehr, Anna Rose Haffner, Margery Uebelhoer, Josephine Newnam, George McKay, Leland Maxwell, Edwin Richardson, Jim Curran, and Ned Hoffman.

Dr. Sumner, having been ordered home from an extensive education in the continent, hangs up his shingle and plays solitaire. The comedy revolves about his treatment of his first patient, Budd Woodbridge, a young man who was the victim of the green-eyed monster, jealousy. His mother, a matronly society leader of the small town, was the one sedate character in the play. The plot brings moments of laughter, suspense, and romantic inclinations, and discloses the "providentially" rich uncle and details necessary for a "live-happy-ever-after" drama.

Ruth Alice Ream, Bud Miller, Frank Janorschke, Peggy Weaver, leads in "The Boomerang." Bobby Dessauer, Frank Janorschke in "Hearts Enduring." Frank Janorschke as Scrooge with Tiny Tim; Bill Tilker, John Broom, Louis Julliard as the Spirits in "Christmas Carol." Dorothy Gray, Isabel Gallardo, Bernadine Stauffer, Harriet Fuelber, Fred Sebring, Bill Robbins, Lowell Reed in "The Boomerang."

The indispensable back-stage crew was under the direction of Dick Millikan, who was aided by Bob Butler, Brock Cleary, Paul Bundy, Hubert Eme, Irving Latz, and Ellis Elder.

Edwin Richardson, class president and business manager, announced a profit of nearly $180, testifying to the financial success of the play.

public speaking department

Albert A. Coil

Our speech department again made its presence felt throughout the state by placing a powerful debate team in the Mishawaka invitational tournament. In a pre-season tournament at Mishawaka, Riley and Central of South Bend, and Wiley of Terre Haute were beaten, our only loss being to Elkhart. The following comprised the squad for the trip: Helen Long, Helen Nordyke, Herman Deck, Louis Jacobs, Robert Heine, Ilhamie Maloley, Max Ochstein, Vincent Carlson, Karl Dettling, Alfred Fleming, Robert Metz, Jacob Ochstein, and Felix Zweig.

Two days later, on January 8, the affirmative team suffered the first Northeastern Indiana Debate Conference loss to North Side, the negative beating Elmhurst. The following week the negative duplicated their victory; this time Monroe was their victim. With the conference debate championship at stake, the affirmative lost a two to one decision to Huntington despite the good work of Jacob Ochstein, third speaker.

In the state debates following, the negative vanquished Elmhurst, North Side, Bippus, and Columbia City. The affirmative team humbled only North Side in opposing these four. Felix Zweig, third negative speaker, was highly praised by university judges for his excellent debating and was pronounced "the best debater in the tournaments." Besides the two debaters mentioned, the varsity was composed of Helen Long, Herman Deck, Vincent Carlson, Louis Jacobs, Robert Heine, and Karl Dettling. Alfred Fleming, Max Ochstein, and Ilhamie Maloley were loyal practice debaters to the varsity during preparation for the tournament. Central can well be proud of her debaters' records and the able coaching of Mr. Albert A. Coil.

In the extemporaneous field, Jacob Ochstein won the Kigar Cup for the second time in the fall. Felix Zwieg copped the honors in the spring contest. Contestants in the finals of the fall contest were Herman Deck and Robert Metz. The Freshman-Sophomore Contest was won by Helen Long. Paul Schwehn was second and Io Marbaugh third. Robert Kaag, Paul Ream, and Elizabeth Lanier also spoke in the finals.

Felix Zweig and Jacob Ochstein, with Robert Heine as alternate, represented Central in the County Discussion Contest. Other contestants in the local contest were: Herman Deck, Louis Jacobs, Alfred Fleming, and Max Ochstein.

the speech program

Jacob Ochstein represented Central in the Woman's Club Citizenship Oratorical Contest this year.

The social functions, featuring two tea dances and Bow-Day, were directed by Marian Ingham. Harriet Fuelber and Helen Nordyke were Miss Ingham's aids for Bow Day. William Adler was the master of ceremonies inaugurating the annual initiation party of the Speech Department.

The public speaking program for the year was brought to a close by the Public Speaking Banquet which followed the Reising Declamation Contest and the City Extemporaneous Contest. The feature of the banquet was the awarding of National Forensic League honors. The officers of the local chapter this year are: Jacob Ochstein, president; William Robbins, vice-president; Ruth Alice Ream, secretary; Robert Heine, treasurer; and Felix Zweig, librarian. William Robbins, Felix Zweig, and Jacob Ochstein have gained the highest honors possible in the National Forensic League—the Degree of Distinction.

This successful year in public speech work at Central will certainly lure many underclassmen into entering this field, especially since the department will be greatly depleted by graduation.

As the world goes modernistic in art, music, and dancing, the Caldron keeps abreast of the times and uses a modernistic theme. Under the tutelage of Miss Leah Austin, the staff has worked steadily and enthusiastically to produce a memorable record. Tea dances and the annual vod-vil have been given to help finance this undertaking. George McKay and Mary Aldred, editor-in-chief and associate editor respectively, and Bob Shirey, business manager, were backed by a competent staff of seniors and underclassmen.

the school paper

Although during the first semester there was a scarcity of Spotlight subscriptions, the hard work of the ad staff, under the managership of Bob Shirey and Bill Broom, and the co-operation of the student body brought about improved conditions. As in previous years the paper has been supervised this past year by Miss Leah Austin and Mr. J. R. Jones, editorial and business staffs respectively. The first term the editor was Blair Hattersley, the second, Leland Maxwell.

Besides the two editors, the paper was under the direction of Babette Dessauer and Ruth Holderman, managing editors, Winifred Mertz, desk editor, and Virginia Coverdale and Betty Pollak, news editors, the first semester. In corresponding leaderships during the second semester were Winifred Mertz, Virginia Coverdale, Edwin Stumpf, and Kitten Yarnelle.

honor journalists

In order to give recognition to outstanding journalists, a local chapter of Quill and Scroll was introduced into Central in 1929. A senior in the upper third of his class scholastically, who has done distinctive journalistic work either on the Spotlight or Caldron for two or three years, is eligible to this international honorary society. Qualifications for juniors are the same with the addition of a local requirement of an A average in grades.

An old-fashioned "meller-drammer" written and presented in the Vod-vil, and a picnic given for the seniors by the junior members, featured the year's activities of the club.

This year the Fragmenta Latina became the Fragmenta as the three language departments united in producing a new linguistic paper. The editors from the three sections were: Latin, Catherine Yarnelle; German, Ruth Foelber; French, Helen Palmer. Reporters from the several classes were: Latin, Babette Dessauer, Claude Reese, Velma Austin, Helen Phinney, Helen Jones, Robert Nathan, Mary McAnlis, Helen Doswell, Elda Faster, Mary Lou Cory, and Mable Springer; German, Ruth Foelber, Frieda Herbst, Gertrude Leiser, and Victoria Wesling; French, Jane Bash, Ilhamie Maloley, Eileen Croy, Ann Fuelber, and Cecelia Bolson.

The Writers' Club is one of Central's youngest daughters, for it was just organized this year. Its purpose is to foster better writing, and, in carrying out this purpose, the club contributes much to the Central Light magazine. The members are ably advised by Miss Hazel Hawkins.

Meetings are held every other Friday at four o'clock at the home of Miss Hawkins. At each meeting members are supposed to bring papers which they have written on any subject they wish. They read and criticize one another's contributions. They also have meetings of a different kind. On March 25 the club was very fortunate to have as its speaker Vivian Crates Logan, News-Sentinel reporter. At the first meeting in April each member spoke on some phase of literature or writing. In May a social meeting was held at the home of Virginia Coverdale.

This club is one of the few organizations which have no officers. The membership is small. It includes Mary McAnlis, Barbara Leif, Deloris Grice, Gertrude Leiser, Mary Aldred, Virginia Coverdale, Lee Klopfenstein, Fred Tucker and Joe Autenrieth.

For the sixth year the Central Light has been issued by the English department. The articles were selected by the reading committee from the best work of the English classes which is submitted by the teachers as well as from that of the newly organized Writers' Club. Miss Hawkins has been given permanent charge of the magazine. Any publication is a distinct achievement because what goes in wins over strong competition.

The cover for the fall issue, designed by Dan Platt, depicted the Writers' Cup, donated by Mr. Robert Koerber, to whom the magazine was dedicated. The art work was supervised by Miss Mary Zent, woodblocks by W. W. White, and typing by J. R. Jones. Copies were mimeographed and sold for five cents each.

The reading committee for this issue included Rhoda Lewerenz, Ruth VanKirk, William Hoover, Wayne Smith, Ward Beers, Gertrude Leeser, Loren Hay, Paul Ream, Josephine Newnam and Edmund Katzenmaier.

Mary Grabner made the cover for the spring number which was published under the same supervisers. This time the magazine was printed and sold for ten cents. The readers were: Alfred Falk, Ruth Alice Ream, Lois Dennis, William Hoover, Catherine Yarnelle, Jane Fredrickson, Babette Dessauer, Margaret Lepper, Kathryn Goodwin, Tom Miller, and Ward Beers.

national honor society

National Honor Society is one of Central's three honorary organizations, the other two being Quill and Scroll and National Forensic League. The selection of members is made by a faculty committee in accordance with recommendations from the entire faculty. Membership is one of the greatest honors that Central can bestow upon one of her students, for admission is based on character, scholarship, leadership, and service.

At an assembly in January Mr. F. H. Croninger announced the decision of the committee and awarded National Honor Society pins to 29 seniors. They were: Betty Arnold, Winifred Bertram, Robert Butler, Babette Dessauer, Robert Dilts, Elda Faster, Harriet Fuelber, Esther Heine, Robert Heine, Louis Jacobs, Mildred Knothe, Nancy Kover, Jane Latz, Paul Lenz, Rhoda Lewerenz, George McKay, Leland Maxwell, Jacob Ochstein, Orpha O'Rourke, Ruth Alice Ream, Edwin Richardson, William Robbins, Anna Marie Schick, Jack Seigel Virginia Sponhauer, Edith Stapleton, Bernadine Stauffer, Peggy Weaver, and Felix Zweig. In April the committee made a second choosing. This time they added to the list Barbara Leif and Genevieve Sponhauer.

This organization has no regular activity but met once with Miss Harrah to elect officers. At this meeting Leland Maxwell was named president; George McKay, vice-president; and Jacob Ochstein, secretary.

future home makers

A worthy daughter of Central is the Home Economics Club which was started nine years ago to give the girls of Central a chance to keep informed on modern ideas of home-making. The club promotes as its purpose friendship and interest among the girls who are interested in domestic science. The meetings are held once a month. To be eligible for membership one must have taken or be taking now the course in domestic science.

The club members work hard to do things for others. They made a quilt which they gave to a needy family. At Christmas time they entered into the holiday spirit and made up a basket for some indigent family.

The adviser of the club is Miss Maple Byers, who teaches domestic science at Central. The officers for the semester from September to January were: president, Marjorie Lehman; vice-president, Elva Jackson; secretary, Helen Nordyke; treasurer, Lillian Jones. The following served from January to June: president, Anna Johnson; vice-president, Ruth Foelber; secretary, Marcella Wolff; treasurer, Lillian Jones.

younger girl reserves

Central Triangle Club, better known as C.T.C., has come into prominence as an outstanding club for high school freshmen and sophomore girls. It is a high school Girl Reserve club and has the same purpose as the other G.R. clubs, branch members of the Y.W.C.A. It works hard to carry out its purpose which is three-fold: religious, social, and service. Originally it was the U.P.D. club, its letters standing for Usefulness, Patriotism, and Devotion. It was an offspring of the Friendship Club and came into being in 1919.

The meetings are quite varied. Some are social, some ceremonial. Sometimes plays are presented and occasionally there is a speaker. Their world project is to write letters to girls in foreign countries whose names they have received.

Officers for the first semester were: president, Mildred Hawkins; vice-president, Hillis Gallmeyer; secretary, Ruth Peek; treasurer, Betty Geary; cabinet, Clara Bente, Mabel Springer, Doris Doswell, Dorothea Prange. Second semester officers were: president, Mabel Springer; vice-president, Dorothea Prange; secretary, Clara Rhodes; treasurer, Clara Bente; cabinet, Hillis Gallmeyer, Mary Lou Cory, Velma Torbeck, Hildegarde Vondereau. The advisers are Miss Marie Ehle and Miss Ruth Brown.

always on the job---the boosters

Organized for the purpose of creating and strengthening school spirit, the Booster Club is perhaps the most active club in Central. Its membership is representative, comprising one member of each club or organization. It was founded by Miss Hawkins in 1927 and taken over by Miss Pence in 1928. Since 1932 it has been sponsored by Miss Brigham.

The social activities are many. November 25, the Tiger Mixer, honoring the football team, was held in the girls' gymnasium. On April 19 the Tiger Hop was held in the boys' gymnasium and its honor guests were the basketball boys. The Boosters present skits at the pep sessions and always conduct the Valentine pep session. Novelties are sold in the halls as well as a great variety of eatables at the games. Members also decorate the gymnasium or football field before games.

Officers were: chairman, George McKay; secretary, Virginia Bash.

math club---central's oldest club

The Mathematics Club has the unique distinction of being the oldest high school club in Fort Wayne. In celebration of its organization in 1913 a twentieth anniversary banquet was held at the Y.M.C.A. on December 6, 1933. Robert Heine, president, was toastmaster. Speakers were: Miss Mary Gardner, department head; Wayne Morrill, Welcome Warner, Felix Zweig, Mr. Fred H. Croninger, principal.

As part of the anniversary celebration on December 4 the club enjoyed an interesting illustrated lecture by Dr. Stanley Cain of Indiana University on "Dynamic Symmetry." The closing event of the year was the annual picnic held in May at Foster Park.

First semester officers were: president, Robert Heine; vice-president, Nancy Kover; secretary, Anna Marie Schick; treasurer, Eugene Kruse. Second semester: president, Leland Maxwell; vice-president, Josephine Newnam; secretary, Ruth Phinney; treasurer, Edwin Stumpf.

A Mathematics Cup, to be engraved with the name of the senior completing four years of mathematics and having the highest scholastic average, has been presented to Central.

One of the most popular clubs for junior and senior girls in Central is the Friendship Club, a branch of the Girl Reserves. Its purpose is three-fold, being: first, to create a friendly spirit among the high school girls; second, to develop habits of helpfulness; and third, to promote growth in Christian character. The club has worked hard to carry out this purpose and has been aided greatly by its adviser, Miss Vera Pence.

At the meetings, held every two weeks, the girls spend a great deal of their time planning helpful things for others. They filled baskets which were given to needy families at Thanksgiving and Christmas time. They made and filled Easter baskets for children who otherwise would not have been able to enjoy such things.

The club gave a tea dance in November which was a success socially as well as financially. They sponsored two teas, one for mothers, and another for the faculty. In February the members enjoyed a pot-luck supper at the Y.W.C.A. They planned an early morning hike and breakfast during spring vacation.

Officers were as follows: first semester: president, Orpha O'Rourke; vice-president, Elda Faster; secretary, Mardell Nahrwold; treasurer, Anna Marie Schick. Second semester: president, Esther Heine; vice-president, Hutoka Neu; secretary, Ruth Murphy; treasurer, Dorothy Miller.

Organized in 1932 by Miss Mary Catherine Smeltzly, the Vagabond Club has for its object the enjoyment of the history, customs, legends and pictures of different countries. The club is very much interested in foreign correspondence and secures names of boys and girls in foreign countries for those members who are interested.

This year the Vagabonds had the pleasure of being entertained by many different types of programs including the following: a trip to Concordia College under the leadership of Professor William C. Burhop; a discussion on state flowers by Mr. Meredith Aldred; Mr. Gaston Bailhe and Betty Arnold in renditions of national anthems of various countries; a Mexican Christmas party; guests of the Art Club to hear Dr. Milton speak on China; Reverend Vincent on Siam; adventures with Dr. Elston; a trip to the historical museum; a pot-luck supper; and a historical pilgrimage. A tea dance was given by the organization on October 27.

Officers for the first semester were: president, Kenneth Bangs; vice-president, Nancy Kover; secretary, Esther Heine; treasurer, Robert Wass. For the second semester they were: president, Winifred Mertz; vice-president, Henry Lojek; secretary, Edith Stapleton; treasurer, George Powers. Miss Esther Thomas is the other adviser of the club.

The Latin Club represents a part of the language department of Central High School. It was recently organized; its first meeting was held in September, 1933. Its purpose is to afford a better appreciation of Latin for students who are interested in that subject. Its requirement for membership is the completion of the 9B course in Latin. The club is under the capable guidance of Central's two Latin teachers, Miss Lucasse and Miss Harrah.

The meetings are held on the fourth Wednesday of each month. At these meetings plays or skits concerning the Romans are usually presented. At one time, a farce on the founding of Rome was presented, and at another time the death of Caesar was brought up to date. Once the members had a chance to find out their destiny. They gave questions to the Delphic oracle and these were answered by the three priestesses.

The officers for the semester from September to January were: Jane Weil, first consul; Alois Derry, second consul, and Helen Doswell, quaestor-scriba. For the semester from January to June they were: Barbara Leif, first consul; Catherine Yarnelle, second consul, and George Blossom, quaestor-scriba.

Another one of Central's loyal organizations is the Senior Hi-Y. It is sponsored by the Y.M.C.A. and holds its meetings in that building. This club was organized in 1919 by Mr. Brunson and Mr. Veal of the Y.M.C.A. and Mr. Croninger of Central. Its purpose is to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character. Its slogan is "clean sports, clean speech, clean scholarship, and clean living."

During the first semester a father and son pot-luck was held in the high school cafeteria. On the 16th of December the club sponsored a roller skating party at Bell's Rink. March 20 was the date of a wiener bake in the lobby of the Y.M.C.A. at which both boys and girls were present.

The officers for the first semester were: president, Jack Seigel; vice-president, William Adler; secretary, Jacob Parks; treasurer, Lowell Reed. For the second semester they were: president, Jerome Woodward; vice-president, Walter Wolf; secretary, Gerald Meeks; treasurer, Kenneth Bangs. The club was under the direction of Mr. Richardson of Central and Mr. Ackerman of the Y.M.C.A.

First Row—L. Maxwell, J. Seigel, E. Kruse, W. Adler, E. Richardson, G. McKay, A. Ferber, M. Barrett, Mr. Richardson; Second Row—E. Hoffman, L. Reed, W. Wolf, J. Parks, G. Rider, R. Houser, K. Christie, B. Kissinger, K. Dettling, J. Woodward; Third Row—R. Ferber, G. Meeks, J. Edwards, H. Conine, D. Crumm, M. Mercer, W. Bates, K. Bangs; Fourth Row—R. Dilts, D. Chaney, W. Tilker.

central honor society

Although the Honor Society was not established until 1928, it soon took its place among the older and more prominent clubs. It was a result of the desire of the faculty to recognize scholarship. Its purpose is to arouse interest in and grant recognition to scholastic ability. Students above the grade of 9B who have as their semester grades three A's and nothing less than a B are eligible to become members. Meetings are held the first Wednesday of each month. Eugene Bailey of North Side and Dr. Connelly were two speakers heard. Besides meetings, the members got together for a pot-luck in December at the home of Virginia Coverdale. Each spring the club gives a banquet.

For the first semester the officers were: Winifred Bertram, president; Catherine Yarnelle, vice-president; Cecelia Bolson, secretary-treasurer. For the second semester they were: Anna Marie Schick, president; George Powers, vice-president; Edwin Stumpf, secretary-treasurer. The advisers are Miss Priest and Mr. Butler.

The Euterpean Club, which was formed in November, is the new musical club for Central students. It is naturally closely associated with the music department, although many members are affiliated with it because of their interest in music. Its purpose is to be a nucleus of musical culture in the school. In order to increase the educational value of the club, there are supposed to be guest artists every other meeting with school programs alternating. However, this plan was not followed strictly because of the unusual activity of the department around contest time. Still, the laxness in the following of the plan was made up in the latter half of the semester.

First Row—J. Latz, Mr. Bailhe, D. Millikan. Second Row—R. Phinney, K. Bolyard, B. Nieman, H. Phinney, B. Arnold, E. Faster, O. Swineheart, K. Leonard, H. Nordyke, S. Jacobson. Third Row—J. Broom, C. Stevens, E. Wiegmann, L. House, G. Meeks, H. Leipold, H. Conine.

In Central's extra-curricular work dramatics is represented by the Student Players' Club. It was founded in 1920 and has been guided by its able adviser, Miss Marjorie Suter. Requirement for membership is one semester of dramatics. Two initiations are held each year in which the three high schools unite. To retain his membership, a member must earn points. These he obtains by taking dramatics, by doing stage work, holding office, or taking part in plays.

The club has many activities outside of its regular monthly meetings. In the spring there is the annual picnic. The most important activity is the presentation of plays from which the whole school receives a great deal of pleasure and benefit. This year two one-act plays, "Hearts Enduring," and "Tea-pot on the Rocks," and Dickens' "Christmas Carol" were produced.

Officers from September to January were: president, Robert Butler; secretary, Dorothy Gray; treasurer, Betty Arnold. For the semester from January to June the following served: president, Frank Janorschke; vice-president, Louis Juillard; secretary-treasurer, Babette Dessauer.

lovers of good literature

Central's literary society is Sorosis, a club organized in 1914 to give Central girls insight into the best values of literature and to aid them in spending their spare time profitably. It brings about a greater interest in the better types of literature. The word "Sorosis" means an association of women. The membership is on a scholastic basis. All girls, 10A or above, who have a B average, are eligible.

At one meeting Jane Latz reviewed "Sea Level" by Anne Parrish. At another A. A. Milne's "Mr. Pim Passes By" was read. At one meeting Mrs. Smith spoke on her foreign travels, especially in Greece. Another time Mrs. Arthur Folsom gave an interesting talk on Sir Walter Scott. She spoke of Scott's life from boyhood to death. "Rosalind" by J. M. Barrie, and "A Letter to My Love" by Leonora Weber were also read.

Officers for the semester from September to January were: Betty Arnold, president; Jane Latz, vice-president; Marjorie Lehman, secretary; Olive Foster, treasurer. For the second semester they were: Elda Faster, president; Esther Heine, vice-president; Jane Weil, secretary; Ruth Huxoll, treasurer. The club was under the capable advisership of Miss Katherine Welch.

brush and pencil club

The Brush and Pencil Club, under the advice of Miss Newman, was organized in 1925. It has as its purpose the stimulation of a greater interest and a broader knowledge of art. At first the membership of the club was limited to members of the art department, but later was opened to all pupils who are interested in art. The pin is in the shape of a palette with brushes and pencils drawn through it; this is also the standard emblem of the club.

The program for the year included interesting talks, some of them illustrated, by noted people of Fort Wayne. Mr. Louis Bonsib spoke on Art in Business and Mr. Dunnigan on Advertising. At one meeting the Art Club invited the Vagabonds to be its guests and hear Dr. Milton tell about Chinese art and customs. Once a year a pot-luck supper is held in one of the city parks. The meetings are held every second Friday in Room 330.

Officers for year 1933-34 were: president, Rhoda Lewerenz; vice-president, Eugene Roesener; secretary, Winifred Mertz; treasurer, Henry Lojek. The adviser is Miss Mary Zent.

Students of the art department are of great value to the school. They find many uses for their artistic talents. Winifred Bertram and Rhoda Lewerenz are responsible for the lovely art work in the Caldron. The posters which advertise the social activities of the school are the result of their labors. The posters for "Clean Up and Paint Up Week" and "Get Out and Vote Campaign" for the Junior Chamber of Commerce placed fifth among the prize winners. The Art Club had posters sent to the Bloomington State P.T.A. contest. The subject of these was "Education."

The painting of the scenery for the operetta, "Up in the Air," was in charge of Richard Larimer; Mary Grabner and Robert Cantwell helped him. Without these talented people, the decorations for many of Central's dances would not be so successful.

modern ten commandments

By Pauline Gemmer

1. Thou shalt not flunk.
2. Thou shalt not mutilate the books which thou findest on the library shelf, for if thou dost, thou shalt be in danger of the wrath of the librarian.
3. Thou shalt not covet thy class-mate's girl, neither his car nor his sweater.
4. Thou shalt not take the name of thy dear teacher in vain, for if thou dost, harm might befall thee.
5. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy friend, that thou mayst get a stand-in with thy instructor.
6. Thou shalt study at least one hour every night on each subject; so each teacher says.
7. Thou shalt not explode stink bombs in the school building, lest vile odors shall proceed therefrom.
8. Five days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, but the sixth day is the holiday. In it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor any of thy friends who desireth to borrow thy car.
9. Honor thy superintendent and jolly up the faculty, that thy days may not be too long in Central High School.
10. Thou shalt have none other schools before thee, for thy principal is a jealous principal, and it doth anger him to hear thee speak well of another.

the road the class of 34 has traveled

Little did Central know at the time, that the fall of 1930 heralded the advent of an energetic band of ambitious freshmen that was to carve out a noteworthy career in the granite of Central achievement.

With becoming zeal, they held their first high school class election and emerged, an organized class, capably marshaled by Paul Lenz, president; Nancy Kover, vice-president; Marie Walda, secretary-treasurer; and a social council of Richard Miller, Peggy Weaver, Dorothea Eylenberg, Marjorie Hanley, Jane Latz, Babette Dessauer, and Jane Weil. Under the leadership of their advisers, Miss Florence Lucasse and Mr. M. Aldred, they staged a party in the girls' gym, opening and closing their year's social activities in one grand slam.

Adventuring boldly into the sophomore realms, they upheld their fine beginning by selecting Nancy Kover, president; George McKay, vice-president; and Paul Lenz, secretary-treasurer. The social council, headed by chairman Frank Janorschke, was composed of Peggy Weaver, Jane Latz, Dorothy Gray, and Felix Zweig. With Fate smiling kindly upon them and their genial advisers, Miss Rosza Tonkel and Mr. Willis Richardson, they ventured into the realm of after-game dances and emerged well-off financially from the Sophomore Strut. A tea-dance, in the second semester, added to their coffers and self-confidence.

The next year found them, much to their surprise, upper-classmen. Leland Maxwell was elected president, assisted by Frank Janorschke, vice-president, and George McKay, secretary-treasurer. Bob Kern, chairman, Peggy Weaver, Dorothy Gray, Richard Miller, and Paul Lenz comprised the social council, Mr. Aldred and Miss Tonkel again advising them. The Wind-Up, a clever tea-dance at the end of the first semester, was their first social activity. However, their greatest accomplishment was the novel and highly successful Junior Prom, held May 22 in honor of the seniors at which Dorothy Gray was crowned Prom Queen.

And so they became seniors! Still ambitious, still energetic, but much more learned. In this, their last year, they were efficiently headed by Edwin Richardson, president; William Robbins, vice-president; George McKay, secretary-treasurer; and a social council of Leland Maxwell, chairman, Nancy Kover, Harriet Fuelber, Bob Heine, Ruth Alice Ream, and Peggy Weaver. For the third time, Mr. Aldred and Miss Tonkel were chosen advisers. The auspicious senior play, The Boomerang, was followed by the highly entertaining Vod-vil, staged in conjunction with the Caldron staff on Ground Hog Day. The middle of March gave rise to a tea dance that put them ahead financially. As the class nears the finis, it looks forward to the baccalaureate, commencement dance, commencement ritual, and awarding of diplomas.

In the fall of 1931, there entered the famed portals of Central a timid group of freshmen who were destined to raise the Central hall of fame to a higher level. When they became accustomed to Central life, they organized their class and began their activities. The result of their class election was that Tom Miller was named president; Richard Pierce, vice-president; and Joe Deck, secretary-treasurer. The social council was composed of James Kipfer, Charlotte Uebelhoer, Helen Palmer, Joan Wolf, and Ruth Murphy.

The features of the first year of this class were the Freshman Party in November and the financially and socially successful Freshman Frolic which was given on April Fool's Day. The class was ably advised by Miss Emma Adams and Mr. Meredith Aldred.

Their selection of officers in their second year of school, commonly known as sophomore, proved again their capability of making wise choices. Herman Deck was named president and was assisted by Alois Derry, vice-president; James Kipfer, secretary-treasurer; and Robert McAleece, Betty Jane Merchant, Joe Deck, and Marjorie Bittler, social council. The class advisers who assisted the class executives in leading the class through another year of success were Miss Blanche Nielsen and Mr. John Reising. The main events of this peppy class during its second year of school were the Sophomore Derby and the "Big Ten" Tea Dance.

By this time the class has advanced academically and socially to the rank of juniors. They are now headed by Vincent Carlson, president; Alois Derry, vice-president; and Robert McAleece, secretary-treasurer. The social council is composed of Charlotte Uebelhoer, Margie Bittler, Helen Palmer, Vera Rice, and James Kipfer. The Jack Frost Hop given this year, and the annual Junior Prom in May wrote two more items of success on the records of the class of '35.

After three ballots had been taken, Helen Doswell was chosen to lead the class of '36 this year. The election was held in the session room on Monday, October 2, with Miss Emma Adams, the faculty adviser of the class during its freshman year, presiding. Ward Beers was elected vice-president and Mildred Hawkins, secretary-treasurer, on the second ballot. At the same election Edwin Stumpf, Bruce Hunt, president of the class as freshmen, Beatrice Call, Victor Boerger and Lois Dennis were elected to the social council.

These officers met with Miss Lewis and chose Miss Emma Adams, girls' gym teacher, and Mr. John A. Reising, math instructor, as class advisers. At the first meeting of these officers and advisers the date for the T-Dance was selected. Friday, December 23, was chosen because it was thought more money would be made at that time. "Sophomore Reindeer Hop" was taken as the name of the dance. Posters were made by Bea Call carrying out the name. A profit of over sixteen dollars was made at the dance at which all the officers and advisers were taking tickets.

The officers of the class of '36 during the freshman year were Bruce Hunt, president; Helen Doswell, vice-president; Milly Hawkins, secretary-treasurer; social council, Margie Nichols, Mary Martha Rabus, Bob Weaver, Virginia Tucker, and Jack Schreck.

Many sophomores made the honor roll the first six weeks of this semester, that is, they made 3 A's and no grade below B. They were: Ward Beers, Jean Biersdorfer, Victor Boerger, Cecelia Bolson, Marie Brown, John Charlton, Lois Dennis, Helen Doswell, Dorothy Ehrman, Mildred Hawkins, Virginia Heller, Esther Hemrick, Lillian Jones, Robert Kutsch, Helen Long, Kathleen McKay, Dorothy Masursky, Margaret Nichols, Louis Oetting, Lloyd Ott, Ruth Peek, Eugene Roesener, Norman Schroeder, Robert Smith, Mabel Springer, Edwin Stumpf, Lauragene Trietsch and Geraldine Uhl.

energetic, enterprising---the sophomores

Members of the class of 1936 constitute a very representative and active group. Many of the students have begun to discover the large list of activities offered to them, activities for everyone no matter in what his interest lies.

First in the list is the president of the class, Helen Doswell, followed by Vice-President Ward Beers, and Secretary-Treasurer Mildred Hawkins, all honor students and prominent in outside activities.

The field of sports has many promising athletes. Among the sophomore boys out for honors are Steve Sitko, Fred Kabisch, James McDonald. The girls are also athletically minded and many evenings after school find Avinell Lipp, Lena Kies, Phyllis Haslup, and Betty Bratt in the girls' gym, practicing basketball, baseball, or tap dancing.

Some budding young actors from this class are Vivian Rider, Margaret Nichols, Virginia Heller, and Dorothy Masursky. Then, too, there are many journalistically minded young sophs. The Spotlight office is often cluttered up with Ed Stumpf, Ward Beers, Cecelia Bolson, and Mable Springer.

The class of '36 is well represented in the Booster Club by Bea Call, Helen Doswell, Ed Stumpf, and Cecelia Bolson. Lillian Jones carries on the class honors in the Home Ec Club, "Pee Wee" Hemrick in the Art Club, and Mable Springer in Central Triangle as president.

This year two dancers from the class added their talents to the Senior-Caldron Vodvil, Helen Doswell and Cecelia Bolson. Bob Smith is a member of the band and a leading character in this year's operetta, while Dorothy Fox sings in the glee club.

Last, but not least, are those who are members of the Honor Society, a real honor. Among them are Ed Stumpf, Mable Springer, Norman Schroeder, Cecelia Bolson, Kathleen McKay, Louis Oetting, and Lottie Lojek.

the youngest who roam our halls

Much enjoyment was secured by the class of '37 from their party and from becoming active in the many clubs that form the social life at Central High School. At the election of officers, Jimmy Koegel was chosen to lead the freshmen in their first year. Alfred Falk was given the next highest office, that of vice-president. The position of secretary-treasurer was awarded Mary McAnlis. The social council was composed of Lloyd Altekruse, Jean Bratt, Dorothy Bentz, Mae Rose Slagle, and Jane Bash. Miss Marian Ingham and Mr. Charles Turpin were chosen advisers by the officers a few days following their election.

As it seemed appropriate to become acquainted, a party was given for that purpose. It was held in November in the girls' gym. Games and dancing served as recreation. At the close of the evening taffy apples were served. This was the largest freshman party ever given.

As well as parties and clubs, grades must be remembered. The freshmen students who were on the honor roll the first semester are as follows: Geraldine Bacon, 4 A's; Marguerite Baker, 3 A's; Ethel Bebout, 3 A's; Anna Boehm, 4 A's; Mildred Fabian, 4 A's; Alfred Falk, 5 A's; Kathryn Goodwin, 4 A's; Evelyn Hamm, 4 A's; Elizabeth Lanier, 4 A's; Irving Latz, 3 A's; Donald McAllece, 3 A's; Mary McAnlis, 4 A's; Mary Helen Mertz, 3 A's; Sophie Nicholas, 4 A's; Louise Niles, 3 A's; Clara Rhodes, 3 A's; Dorothy Telschow, 4 A's.

Another party was held in May for freshmen. Honor guests were the new 9B students who had entered school the second semester.

The freshmen list as their outstanding students the following:

Irving Latz—The protege of Dick Millikan in both stage work and basketball.

Elizabeth Lanier—She's an artist, an honor student, and a journalist of no small ability.

Jimmy Koegel—Our president. He also goes out for sports, especially basketball and tennis.

Mary Lou Cory—C. T. Club is her forte, and she loves to distribute Spotlights. Her hobby is to collect snapshots.

Mary McAnlis—Another of these honor students. She also belongs to the Writers' Club and is a member of the Boosters.

Alfred Falk—Besides belonging to Boosters and Latin Club, Alfred finds time to keep on the honor roll.

Marguerite Baker—She has won honors in the State Music Contest twice and is going to compete in the National Contest.

Edith Reusch—Although very pretty, her favorite subject is biology.

Lloyd Altekruse—He represents the freshman class in basketball.

Jane Bash—Always doing her bit on the Spotlight and Caldron. She is a member of the Art Club also, and of course an honor student.

Jack Paul—Another athlete, whose chief interest is basketball.

how to avoid overwork

By MARY CAL-DRED and VIRGINIA SPOT-DALE

We had long realized vaguely the prevalence of the terrible disease known as Dark Circle Beneath the Eye. It attacks insidiously after a night of burning the midnight oil in study. Then the freshmen arrived—dewy, rosy faces unblemished by toil. We were shocked. Were these innocent children to fall victim to this dreadful scourge? We must save them!

From our wealth of experience, we drew up this little code of ten rules, close adherence to which will provide immunity against D. C. B. E.

Rule 1. Notice an untied shoestring. That is, supposing Miss Hawkins is assigning a report on the various homes of Lincoln. Ask yourself this question: Will the research entailed in discovering the necessary information require extra work? The answer is, of course, yes. Well, then, at the moment when she looks about the class in search of a victim, discover suddenly that the left shoestring has come untied. Bend over immediately and make a neat bow. She will not call on you because she has a sense of honor. One never hits another when he is down.

Rule 2. Ask questions. This is a suggestion to prevent the dear teacher's discovering just to what extent the pupil has avoided overwork the previous evening. However it must be employed discreetly. The queries must at least appear to have some bearing on the subject under discussion and to spring from a desire for knowledge and must be put at the strategic moment—just when you perceive that the teacher has decided that your share in the recitation has, up to this time, been insufficient. She is about to cross-examine you concerning the life habits of the amoeba. A little practice is required to be able to predict exactly when she has reached this conclusion. But you are well repaid, for she is quite often convinced that you know what the lesson is about and passes you by to entrap some other who has not profited by our helpful little hints.

Rule 3. Study your teacher's facial expressions and the inflections of her voice as they reveal her thoughts. This, somewhat like the above, necessitates a certain amount of skill. But, especially if you are fortunate enough to have a teacher twice, it is very effective. A term of careful study and observation (or even less, in cases of close application) familiarizes one with the teacher's processes of thought to such an extent that he is able to determine with almost unvarying accuracy what she wants the answer to be.

Rule 4. Don't take five subjects. (This is self-explanatory and needs no further elaboration by us. Simply look around you.)

Rule 5. Look studious. In some cases this may be a little difficult, but its advantages are distinct. When, during the study period, you wish to decide whether to go to the Emboyd to see Clark Gable or to the Palace which, after all, doesn't cost as much, don't acquire a dreamy expression and gaze out the window. You might as well tell the teacher you are not studying. Instead, stare fixedly at your textbook, turning pages at proper intervals. Detection is impossible.

Rule 6. Build up a reputation—coast. For one who at times finds a little work invigorating but wishes to take vacations from it more frequently than the arrangement of the school term provides for, this is an excellent idea. Pursue your studies diligently, convince your teachers of your love for labor, be the star of all your classes. Then suddenly cease to study. The first week they will see no change. The second they will think you are not feeling well. The third they will begin to feel that of late you have not been as conscientious as formerly. And the fourth they will suspect that something is definitely wrong. Here you start all over again.

Rule 7. Pick your collaterals carefully. This rule may be divided into various parts as follows:

(a) Choose collaterals with large print and small pages.

(b) Avoid source material. It takes far more concentration than the digested variety.

(c) Read chapters divided into a number of sections. You may then have five or six collaterals from the amount of reading which would have netted you but one had it not been so separated.

Rule 8. Don't be punctual. While punctuality may be one of the cardinal virtues, its disadvantages far outweigh its advantages. Suppose Miss Lucasse asks you to look up Roman water-clocks and suggests that it might be well to have it ready by Monday. On Monday be entirely unprepared and ask another day. On Tuesday plead that the book was out. On Wednesday say you forgot, but that you'll have it by Thursday. By this time it is best to have the report. But we can absolutely guarantee that overwork in the way of Latin reports will be eliminated in the future.

Rule 9. Take notes on the comments the teacher makes while assigning the lesson—a rule which is at its best when applied to Latin. When Miss Harrah is running over the morrow's translation don't dreamily initial the margin of your book, employ your pencil in a wiser fashion. A few previously thought-out hieroglyphics will serve to remind you of the word she used for facultas or what the subject of putare is, saving you the trouble of looking them up and pleasing her enormously that you should remember.

Rule 10. Injure a hand. Of course we would never advise so desperate a measure except as a last resort for stubborn cases. The injured member must be your writing hand. Think of the tests, the themes, the daily lesson you escape. Naturally, in the event that you are ambidextrous, you must provide injury for both.

value of athletics

Any agency or incentive that causes or stimulates boys and girls to have healthy bodies and to build up a reserve of vitality and strength; any activity that trains the mind and body to work together in useful work or play; any sport that furnishes a motive to make good grades or that teaches self-control and co-operation is worthy of an important place in the life of young folks. All this and much more athletics does for high school pupils.

Boys and girls who participate in games and sports, whether intramural or inter-school contests, are in better physical condition and keep such longer and better than the majority of those who do not take part. They get doctors' examinations often and every little disturbance is quickly looked after. They learn to take care of their bodies.

Athletics furnishes a leisure-time activity in school and after, and gives many boys a chance to go to college. Many of these graduate and become athletic directors and coaches.

Most of this training is done after school hours when pupils would be doing very little worth-while work anyway.

So if athletics furnishes stimulating recreation, teaches self-control and tolerance, furnishes valuable associations with coaches and pupils, encourages plenty of sleep and proper eating habits, and a stimulation to keep up school grades—this is why I believe boys and girls should be urged and encouraged to take up some athletics in high school.

Murray Mendenhall and Bob Nulf

Hard fighting, clean playing teams are a Central habit. This has been accomplished through the ability and persistency of Central's mentors, Mendy and Bob. This combination, coupling the ability, experience, and personality of the two, instills that famous fighting pep into the players and has upset many of Indiana's highly-touted teams.

Mendy, with his quiet, unassuming manner, is well liked by the student body as well as his players. For ten years he has produced scrapping elevens and battling fives. The dawning of each new year finds Central's teams even more feared. Every Centralite is proud that the school has such a competent coach. These charges, tutored by Mendy, besides being taught the various games from A to Z, are developed physically and mentally and are assured of an opportunity to show their worth.

Bob Nulf, a former pupil at Central, in the four years which he has spent as assistant coach, has earned the admiration of the students and faculty alike. He has been a valuable help to Mendy. Although baseball is no longer played at Central, in former years Bob produced amazing teams. The Tigers were readily attracted by his pleasing personality.

Besides teaching the regular sports of football, basketball and track, Mendy and Bob have directed the boys' gym classes and the varied intra-mural activities. With two such men guiding the destiny of the athletic world at Central, the future Tigers are bound to be an outstanding team.

From the very beginning the Tiger football eleven looked good and proved it as the season advanced. Winning six out of seven starts and by large margins is proof enough that Coaches Mendenhall and Nulf had produced a football team above the average, but that the team showed marked superiority to the highly touted Elkhart Blue Blazers was an added proof. In fact, it was this defeat over Elkhart that attracted the attention of many sports writers all over the state. Our team was even booked to play the undefeated Reitz of Evansville for the mythical state championship. But due to an upset in the South Side game, the tilt was called off.

In the first game of the 1933 season, Central decisively downed Bluffton at their field by a score of 20 to 6. Coach Mendenhall surprised Bluffton and even his followers by using an efficient passing attack.

Displaying an A-1 brand of football, Central upset all dope buckets and decisively routed Elkhart, the pre-game favorites, by a 20 to 0 score. This victory was only the second time they beat Elkhart in the many years they have played together.

The Central Catholic fighting Irish suffered a defeat at the hands of Central's Tigers on Saturday, September 30, the final score being 21-13. The Central men seemed to lose some of their scrap in this game and were weak on pass defense.

Scoring before the first minute of play was over and adding four more touchdowns in the final half, a conglomeration of the first, second, third, and forth string gridmen of Central defeated the Decatur Yellow Jackets, 32-12, Saturday, October 7.

Friday night, October 13, Central scored its second city-series victory over North Side by an 18 to 0 score. This game showed the superior strength and man-power of the Tiger line.

The Tigers annexed their sixth consecutive win out of six starts by defeating Auburn, 13 to 0. This was the first and only game in which they used a special shift and consequently they had no trouble downing the Red Devils.

The heart breaker of the whole season came last. Although the Archers of South Side defeated the Tigers, 28 to 0, there are several facts to be taken into consideration. Hawkins, the spark plug of the team, was taken from the game with a concussion of the brain, and then the Archers started trouncing. Also, the Tigers had been idle for two weeks previous to the game.

they made the varsity

First in the line-up comes Joe Grimme. He was a tremendous kicker, doing most of Central's kicking. Joe also excelled in ruining opponents' plays. Louis Juillard, the right tackle, was also a scrappy fighter and a good man on defense. He had the ability always to get in there just when the opposition wanted most to keep him out.

Juillard's next-door neighbor, Wineland, right guard, distinguished himself by his hard plunging and blocking. He was an effective tackler and could take a lot of punishment. Woody Hart played center and greatly assisted the line with his great defensive playing. Although held to the second squad for his previous years by the stellar playing of Swift, he proved his worth in his last year of high school football.

Beside Hart comes Carl Langas, left guard. He was a noted blocker and always gave everything he had. He also hit the line with great force, breaking through time and again to nail the ball carrier for a loss. Next in our little summary comes Art Smith, left tackle. He played a fine, hard game this year, especially on the offensive as a blocker. He packed a heavy punch and put a lot of spirit into his playing.

Eugene Seals, the left end, was one of the mainstays of the defense. He was big, fast, and powerful and played a wonderful game. Gene, a junior, has been on the squad for several years, and had a lot of experience.

The key position of the team, the quarter back, was held by Bob Kern, who has been on the Tiger team for four years. Bob, although short and stocky, packs a whale of a punch. He was always on his toes to keep Winegart from copping his position.

Meet Bob Hawkins, who was listed on one of the all-state grid teams, filling the left half-back position. "Sec," as he is nick-named, was the star of the Central offense, continually reeling off runs of forty, fifty, and even sixty yards.

Two Dicks did good work for the Blue and White. Dick Larimer, who played at right half, was also a good man on the offensive. Although he tipped the scales at only 125, he was a great blocker and repeatedly gained a lot of ground. Dick Millikan contributed his bit from the fullback position and when he charged into the line, the linemen came up with a lot of bumps and bruises.

Bob Stubbs, who played back last year, will probably fill Hawkins' shoes next year. He is fast, a good kicker, and slippery as an eel. Although only a sophomore, he is on the varsity, and is expected to do great things next year.

Paul Liable, a senior, came to Central this year from Central Catholic where he was a stellar performer. He excels in the line of passing, is a hard plunger, and a good tackler. He was out of the line-up for several games with a broken hand. Orv Blessing, lineman, is the heaviest man on the team. He uses every pound to advantage. Orv is a good tackler and very effective in removing a lot of enemy interference.

experiences on the hardwood court

Central's Fighting Tigers played through a most successful '33-'34 basketball season. Although they won 15 out of 20 games played during the season, the Central players failed to annex a single championship. Still, Central backers are justly proud of the record of their fighting team.

In the initial start of the season, the Tigers defeated the Portland Panthers, 22-17. Although they were led for three periods by the invaders, Central came back with true tiger spirit and forged into the lead. In the next engagement Central lost a heart-breaking game in their first city series clash to North Side by one point, but gained revenge somewhat by decisively trouncing Kendallville, 41-27, in their first N.E.I.C. engagement.

The Tigers faltered in the next game, losing by ten points to Columbia City. Incidentally, this was one of the most severe beatings the Tigers suffered during the entire season, although playing teams superior to the Eagles. The spirit of "never quit" held when Central warped Garrett, 33-11. The Tigers continued to win when they trounced Central Catholic, 31-14, in a very rough clash.

Lady Luck deserted the squad during the next game when they fell before Auburn, 26-25, in a smooth, well-played ball game, but she came back to help the boys defeat Winamac decisively. The game was featured by a leak-proof defense employed by the Blue.

The next game shocked the entire state, when the Blue netters defeated Hartford City, N.E.I.C. leaders, by a score of 28-25. The latter led until the last three minutes, but the Tigers kept clawing until the score was in their favor. They continued their win streak by taking Winchester, Decatur, and Bluffton in rapid succession, with decisive scores.

Joy came to every Central fan in the next game when South Side, Central's ancient rival, was severely trounced, 26-16, in a game which was much easier than anyone dared predict. The next win put the Tigers in a tie with South Side for the city championship. This victory was immediately followed by another win, a hard fought victory over Washington of East Chicago.

After annexing eight straight games, the team fell before an inferior Warsaw five. The boys seemed to lack their former speed which may be accounted for by the 300-mile trip to East Chicago the day before. This defeat was followed by two wins in a double-header with Avilla and Leo, the victims.

In the next game South Side captured the coveted city crown when they defeated the Tigers by an indecisive margin of two points. In this wildly played game, the Archers led by twelve points with less than six minutes to go, but the Tigers staged a rally and came within two points of making it an overtime ball game.

To prove their strength, the Tigers copped their fifteenth game of the season by severely beating the strong Elkhart squad, 32-26. This victory lowered the curtains on the regular playing season of the 1933-34 basketball season.

Joe Grimme, elected honorary captain by his team mates, heads the list of Tiger hardwood celebrities. This stellar guard graduates this June. His greatest work for the Tiger team was accomplished at pivot point, but he is also an outstanding all-round player, adept in any department of the game. He was awarded the King trophy.

Another graduate whose shoes will be hard to fill next season is "Les" Menze. He played both forward and guard this year, and was excellent at both positions. Ray Hostler, who "found himself" about the middle of this season, is another who, we regret to say, leaves us this June. Ray stars in both defensive and offensive work. His favorite scoring play was a slick "sleeper" worked directly under the basket.

Harry Buckmaster, the only other graduate, began this season on the reserve squad, but his steady, cool-headed playing later won him a position on the varsity. Lyle Neat, a junior, led our scoring this year. Neat is one of the sweetest ball players that has come to Central in a long time. He is a dead shot from every angle and reasonable distance on the floor, and is the most successfully aggressive player on the entire squad. He was high scorer in the city.

Dick Warfield, forward or guard, good in both positions, is another junior in our ranks. Dick's outstanding work has been in getting the ball off the backboard, but, like others, is a fine all-round player. Bob Altekruse will also play his last game for Central next year. Bob is a good floorworker but stars the greatest at his center post.

Virgil Riddle, skilled, cool-headed, and alternate first team man this season, will probably be a regular forward or guard next school year. Bob McKee will be a senior next year. Bob played excellently as a reserve-varsity man this year and finally ended up on the Sectional team.

Jack Paul, a freshman, who played in the same capacity as did McKee this season, is one of Central's brightest prospects. Lloyd Altekruse, Bob's brother, and another freshman, is a very promising center. He made eleven points in the final reserve game.

Freddy Kabisch is now an 11B. He is steady, an excellent defensive man, and hits the bucket from all angles. "Toppy" Bourne, another freshman prodigy, is tall now and growing like a weed. He is a varsity man of the future. Steve Sitko, being the outstanding player on the reserve squad this season, tall, well-built, an honor student, and only a sophomore, makes us expect much from him in the future. Howard Shockey, a junior, is a slick player in all ways and will probably mean a lot to us next year.

Central's Tigers opened their track campaign with a great deal of vigor this year, and the two coaches, Mendy and Bob, harbored hopes of finishing with a successful season listed in the records.

For several years the track team was compelled to practice at Centlivre Park. Many times the boys would trot through the winding streets and out to the old race track finding that the clay, softened by recent rains, would come over their shoes, making it difficult to go through practice with any ease. Now that a good cinder path has been constructed for their benefit on the lot across from the school, the boys have longer hours in which to develop themselves under the careful supervision of the coaches.

In 1933 Mendy put a reputable track team in action against some very strong contenders. This year he hopes to repeat the previous success by obtaining an early start in giving the older members of the team more detailed points in the essentials of running, while Bob will spend more time with the newer ones who look as though they may develop in the course of time.

Mendy can depend upon Bob Hawkins, John Collias and John Charlton to deliver the goods in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Les Menze will shoulder the burden in taking care of the 440-yard dash along with Colias and Robert Brown. Menze, with Christopher Dixie and John Mileff, run the mile and half-mile. John Charlton is a mainstay in the broad jump as he has cleared almost 20 feet in practice.

A new product has been developed this year in the person of Virgil Riddle, a tall boy, who will aid Dick Warfield and Ray Hostler in the high jump and pole vault. Dan Bourne is another promising prospect for this event. Eugene Seals and Maurice Owens will put the shot for Central.

These boys have shown their worth in the first two meets of this season. Garrett's Railroaders were defeated by a score of 58½ to 40½, while South Side and Marion were defeated in a three-way meet by the scores of 50½ to 44½ to 22.

The Tigers were to match their strength with Auburn on April 20 and enter the Kokomo relays at Kokomo on April 28. The N.E.I.C. Conference was scheduled to be held at North Side on May 5. In preparation for the state meet at Indianapolis, May 19, the Sectional was held at Garrett, May 12. The last meet of this year will be the City Track Meet at North Side on May 26.

Activities in sports in which the students of a school participate are of two kinds, intra-mural and inter-school. Intra-mural as defined in Webster means within the walls of a city, but as used here means within the walls of a school. Intra-mural activity, although not given the emphasis placed on inter-school games, plays a large part in the development of boys taking part.

Sports under intra-mural activity are: tennis, tag football, cross-country, basketball, free throw tournament, volleyball, track, hunting, fishing, boxing, wrestling, archery, rifle practice, and participation for membership in the Olympic Club. Mr. Charles Turpin supervised tennis, while the rest of the activity was under the direction of Bob Nulf.

Tag football teams consist of seven men, two ends, a center, and four backfield men. The teams were divided into two leagues, one meeting the fourth period, and the other the fifth on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Intra-mural points were awarded to the players of winning teams.

Cross-country running was next in line on the intra-mural calendar. John Mileff was the winner in this event. The basketball season proved to be interesting to those who participated in the sport. About six games were played by each team in the different leagues, the All-Star, Midget, and Junior. After these games were played, the ball players chose teams and entered the Central "state tournament." The Renaissance squad won the tournament by defeating the Polish Aces.

After this the free-throw tournament came with Joe Ceccanese as high-point man. This tourney is open to all boys in school and always calls forth a lot of competition. Archery, rifle practice, and other activities are held each week. Mr. Wilson heads the Archery Club, and Mr. Veatch supervises the sharp-shooters. Both are interesting sports and are worthy of anyone's attention.

Last year there was a total of 751 participants in the various phases of intra-mural sports, with volleyball topping the list with 189 aspirants.

In the spring of the year after all intra-mural sports have ceased, the ten boys with the highest number of points are awarded the intra-mural "C". It is blue, edged with white. Class numerals of the same style are awarded to the five who are next highest. Points are awarded on the following basis: 5 points, being on a winning team, winner of a tournament, winner of first place in track or on winning relay team; 4 points, runner-up in tourney, second place in track; 3 points, on a second place team, third place in a tournament, third in track or on second place relay team; 2 points, participating in intra-mural sports, fourth place in tournament, fourth place in track; 1 point, on a third place team, fifth place in track, on a relay team placing third.

other minor sports

Intra-mural athletics at Central were continued after the spring vacation with the usual amount of boys participating.

The volleyball leagues were organized in a new manner. The boys organized their own teams, eight boys on each, and entered one of the three leagues, All-stars, Seniors, and Midgets. Eight teams comprised the All-star league, eight the Senior league, and four the Midget league. As no other activity used the gymnasium at that time of the year, the volleyball games were more numerous than the intra-mural basketball or tag-football games.

With the varsity track team well started and in good shape, the intra-mural track meet was held on Central's new athletic field. The participants again had two classes to enter, the Seniors and Midgets. In the senior division, Elmer Keirns placed first with nineteen points while his closest threat was Charles O'Connell, who gathered a total of twelve points. Gordon Anspach and Leslie Felger placed third and fourth. In the midget division Ray Yarman earned thirteen points; Herman Schaefer with ten and one-half, and Bill Miller with nine and one-half placed second and third.

For the first time in the intra-mural athletics at Central, intra-mural boys showed their brawn in wrestling.

The Central Rifle Club has awarded C's this year to all members who have made 180 points or better. Those receiving this honor are: Robert Dilts, Fay Psehes, and Brock Cleary. More boys will receive letters later in the year. The rifle team placed a close fourth in the county match.

Those who received National Rifleman Association awards for sharpshooting are: Fay Psehes, sharpshooter 8th bar; Bob Dilts, Brock Cleary, sharpshooter 7th bar; Lee Klopfenstein, sharpshooter 4th bar.

Officers of the club are: Mr. Harry L. Veatch, Mr. C. G. Cleaver, advisers; Brock Cleary, president; Bob Dilts, vice-president; Virginia Tucker, secretary-treasurer; Fay Psehes, executive officer.

Recognition of prowess in girls' athletics is given by the Central Girls' Athletic Association. To be eligible for active membership one must earn 100 points gained by attendance at outside sports, by making teams, by participating in the girls' Gym Exhibition, or by taking part in such extra sports as hiking or swimming. By this point system all girls are given equal opportunities.

Awards are made according to the number of points earned. A girl must have 400 points for a numeral, 700 for a "C," and 1,300 points for special "C" with "G.A.A." woven in it. Sweaters are given to the three seniors who have the highest number of points. Social and business meetings are held each month. A banquet in May and a picnic near the close of school are always planned.

Officers for the entire year were: president, Mary Jane Kabisch; vice-president, Frieda Kroemer; secretary, Mary Jane Healea; treasurer, Carolyn Kernen; and point recorder, Lena Kies. Miss Meribah Ingham was the adviser.

volleyball---soccer---basketball

Volleyball was the first seasonal sport to set in motion the athletic events of the girls for this year. While the boys were enthusiastically scoring touchdowns in football, the girls were batting a volleyball across the net with an equal amount of vim and vigor. Mary Jane Kabisch, Mary Jane Healea, and Elsie Waltke helped keep the other classes in the notion that the would-be-dignified seniors could still play volleyball, while the freshmen showed themselves "not so timid," as they are generally thought of, for they turned out a mighty scrappy team that kept the other teams just "on their toes" for fear "those freshmen" might defeat them.

The work of all the teams showed the results of effort on the part of the players and the instructors. Miss Adams and Miss Ingham pointed out to the girls the necessity of playing together as a team rather than individuals, and as a result, the games were exciting and interesting both to the players and the onlookers.

Near the close of the volleyball season, an inter-class tournament was played to decide which of the four classes had the best team. The many nights of hard and determined practice proved worth while as the tournament games progressed, and the seniors worked hard to win finally the name of "champions."

The soccer season immediately followed with its inevitable bruised shins and stepped-on toes, with occasional groans from the participants of this delightful game, sometimes called girls' football.

The object of the game is to attempt to get the ball through the opponent's goal, using all parts of the body except the arms and hands. The roars of laughter that come from the onlookers, who generally surround the tall net fence around the soccer field, prove the game to be interesting both to the players and to the audience. The antics that the girls are bound to do when perhaps two girls are trying to kick the ball different ways are really amusing, despite the fact that they are perfectly serious and intent upon the game, unmindful of their attentive audience.

Soccer was started after volleyball this year. Due to the intense heat, it was deemed unwise to start soccer so early. Miss Ingham stated that since soccer was harder to learn than volleyball, it seemed wiser to start volleyball first, as it would be easier for the freshmen to learn. Because of the fact that the soccer season was so late, the weather got too cold to enable them to have a tournament, and the season was, of necessity, rather short.

Basketball always arouses interest even in those less inclined toward athletics, and when the season began, there were so many who came out for it, that it was necessary again this year to have the four classes practicing on different nights. The freshmen turned out in large numbers, and showed good promise of a good team early in the season, while the seniors began once again to work to maintain their standard of having the best all-around team. The other two classes had a good number out for practice, and the season promised to be a good one.

tourney is exciting

The girls' basketball tournament this year proved to be a great success, and each game caused the pitch of excitement to reach higher and higher until it reached the climax when the Seniors downed the Sophomores in the final game to obtain the championship. The gym was crowded every night with the girls eagerly cheering their team on to victory, and each night of the tournament was favored with the attendance of from thirty to fifty boys, and one night Mr. and Mrs. Croninger, all of whom seemed to enjoy the games.

The Sophomores defeated the Seniors 19-18 in the first game of the tournament, M. J. Healea leading the scoring for the Seniors with six field goals. The Freshmen upset the Juniors in the next tilt with a score of 22-15, with Helen Bodeker starring for the Freshmen with six field-goals and two free throws. C. Hughes tossed in five field-goals for the Juniors. The Freshmen were downed by the Seniors, however, after a well-fought battle ending with a score of 16-14. Juniors beat Sophs in a close game of 21-19 with C. Hughes again scoring high for Juniors with four goals. The ball slipped in the net rather easily for the Sophs to win over the Freshmen, 36-30, Linsky making nine goals and two free throws and H. Bodeker again high point man for the Freshmen with eight field-goals and a free throw. The final game was between the Seniors and the Sophomores, whose playing kept the gym in one continual roar. M. J. Healea played a good game tossing in six field-goals and one charity toss.

M. J. Kabisch's fine work as guard deserves mention, as many a fine sniper found herself unable to get near the basket if she was guarding. She is without doubt the best guard of any of the teams. M. J. Healea topped the scoring list with thirty-seven points for tournament scoring, H. Bodeker second with 36, Kiger with thirty-five, Hughes twenty-one, and Winkler twenty-one. This, without a doubt, has been the most interesting and promising season of basketball for a number of years.

Miss Ingham conducts a swimming class at North Side High School every Thursday night that is open to all who wish to sign up. Points are also given in this sport as in all others. Twenty-five points are given for regular attendance, fifty points if half of the requirements stated are passed, and one hundred points if all requirements are passed. A large number of girls regularly attend these swimming lessons and a great deal has been accomplished.

A special tap dance is also being conducted by Miss Ingham on Wednesday nights. A regular "mob" turned out for the first class, but after part of them were "weeded out," a presentable class of about 150 still comes regularly. Miss Ingham planned that this class would do a special tap dance in the annual gym exhibition given every year by the gym girls.

This year the exhibition was entirely managed by the students themselves, who, of course, were responsible for the whole show.

The girls' gym exhibition which took place April 27 was a spectacular as well as a clever performance, well worth the while of those who were fortunate enough to see it. This exhibition is presented annually by the girls' gym classes in order that their parents as well as the teachers might judge what they have accomplished in their gym work during the year. Besides a performance which is given in the morning, the program is again repeated for the parents in the evening.

The exhibition began with stunts given by various gym classes, followed by short games of volleyball, baseball, basketball, and soccer. Then there were three clog dances, four folk-dances, and two tap-dances, each dance containing girls from two different classes. And then the tumbling! Talk about action! This act proved to be one of the most exciting parts of the program, and caused many a mouth to hang wide open at the rather daring maneuvers of the tumblers.

As a finale, about 400 girls marched into the gym in their blue gym suits. Part of them marched around the gym in forms until a blue border was formed, while the rest formed a block "C" in the middle with an additional line of girls in white to border the "C". The whole exhibition was well worked out and beautifully done.

To see the girls tumbling before they reach the perfection that we see them achieve in the exhibition, we must enter the girls' gym, where, in private, they try stunts that first look ridiculous and then, after much practice, develop into the interesting and sometimes daring stunts we later see them do. From the time the tumbling season begins, these girls know just one word—practice, practice, and then more practice. An expert tumbler must be an expert athlete.

Tumbling has taken a strong hold on the girls. It was started four years ago. Since it is more difficult than most sports, it takes longer to interest the girls in it. This year the tumbling team is larger than it ever has been and the different performances have achieved tremendous success. Their daring and tricky stunts have won them recognition and given them ranking among the best tumblers in the city high schools.

Back of the school and across the street, a large field may be discerned from almost any room on the south side of the school. Upon closer inspection, the field will be seen to have the usual run-down lines which form the diamond. The smell of spring in the air sets the girls to thinking of the whine of the ball as it swirls through the air to meet the bat with a resounding crack. Baseball! The first few nights looked as if the classes had turned out en masse, but as the nights of practice progressed, and the number was sifted down, first and second teams were finally chosen from each class. At the close of the baseball season, which is, by the way, the last sport of the year, a tournament was staged and the seniors went to graduation with the everlasting remembrance of the "last game" with its lines of onlookers who never ceased to enjoy the game as much as those who played it.

It had been a pleasant day. After ten years, the graduates of the class of '34 had met in the old building to live over, in a few short hours, the four years they had spent there in years gone by. Again friend had met friend by the old drinking fountains; the old Spotlight office had welcomed former workers; the library had been opened for friends to sit again at tables where once hurried notes had been passed from hand to hand under cover. It had indeed been a pleasant day.

Ten years! How many things had happened in that time! What changes had taken place among that group of interesting adults. All were grown men and women. All were not there, for some had left this world for another. Some were many miles away, but those to whom the privilege of reunion had come were not the carefree students of high school days. Each had met the obligation of making a life, and every face revealed hidden traits of developed personality and character.

The four years spent in high school had proved to be the four best years of training in every phase of work possible. To everyone the lessons in character-building, in development of personality, in responsibility, and in dependability had been well worth every effort put forth. Each had found that to serve his fellow-man was the first duty that he owed to himself.

It had come to them that character is made up of small duties faithfully performed, of self-denials, of self-sacrifices, of kindly acts of love and duty. The power that one obtained was gained through the education he had received, through the wealth he had acquired and through the relationships established. All of this had meant . . . service.

The door of opportunity had been open for those who had wished to enter. There was every variety of professions for one to take as his life's work. Into all of these some found their way. There were doctors there that day, ministers, lawyers, teachers, and the lesson was coming back to them that only the best material must be used in building, that only the noblest thoughts and aspirations and the finest deeds would ever attain for them . . . success.

The only blemish on that happy day was that some had failed in the task of living; but how good it was to know that because some had failed it had not hindered them from trying again. Indeed, the failures were aiding them into greater success. The struggle that they were having was by far more important than the prize they sought. It was the foundation for a steadfast, firm life ahead of them. They were finding that "genius is the art of doing the impossible by overcoming difficulties."

The hours passed all too quickly that day and friends were soon leaving friends. The flying moments had been spent in happy fellowship that day, and each had learned from the experiences told by others. All left the old building and old friends with a feeling of sadness at heart; but every life there determined that the days ahead would be unimpaired and the lessons learned in early years should not be useless.

Sept. 8—After a glorious vacation, back again at the outrageous hour of 8:00 A.M. Two hundred and thirty-four seniors lost last June replaced by more than three hundred freshmen who add their vociferous shouts to the other seventeen hundred Centralites' clatter. Spotlight staff sponsors the first tea dance of the season. Miss McCloud, our popular librarian, replaced by Miss Beierlein. Students to be limited to twenty points in extra-curricular activity, periods to be an hour long and school not to close until 3:15 each day. Oh, my!

Sept. 14—Sixteen more pupils enter Central with two more teachers. Someone will have to take a big breath and blow out the walls of our fair alma mater. Everyone is being besieged by Spotlight campaigners, with Blair Hattersley heading the staff of our weekly publication. Harold Gingher is named the new drum-major. Jimmy Curran still sick.

Sept. 21—Our football team opens the season with a 20-6 victory over the Bluffton Tigers. George McKay, Caldron editor, is elected chairman of the Booster Club, and Bob Butler, president of Student Players. Mr. Richardson, Miss Lucasse, Mr. Stroebel, Mary Aldred and Leland Maxwell form extra-curricular committee. The school mourns the death of two of its members, Helen Storch and Harry Pease. New Latin Club organized. National Forensic sponsors second tea-dance. The show goes on.

Sept. 28—Ed Richardson is tossed the unfortunate task of trying to keep the senior class in order until they dash out of Central's portals in June. Elkhart's highly touted Blue Blazers go home defeated by our grid stars to the tune of 20 to 0. Twenty-nine pupils are elected to serve on the Student Council. Publications personalities jump for joy because the Spotlight runs off with third place in the I.H.S.P.A. competition.

Sept. 28—Now the Juniors have held their election. Vincent Carlson is president. Another tea-dance, today, this one given by the Booster Club. And now our team wins its third victory, after nosing out C.C. 31-13.

lots doing

Oct. 12—Bob Heine is elected Math Club Head and the Booster Club takes in five new members. Boosters hold their annual banquet, and the Caldron staff buys a camera to use in obtaining snapshots for the forthcoming issue. Central Tigers bring home the bacon by beating North Side 18-0, and Decatur 32-12.

Oct. 17—Spotlight celebrates its fourteenth birthday with a special six page edition containing many stories recounting the paper's history. The issues of the Spotlight are henceforth to be given out by council members in the home rooms.

Oct. 26—A lot doing this week. Jimmy Koegel is elected president of the Freshman class. Peggy Weaver and Frank Janorschke are to have the leads of the Senior Play. Jacob Ochstein wins another extemp contest, "Back to School Nite" is a success, and the Vagabonds hold a tea dance. Rhoda Lewerenz is president of Brush and Pencil, and stamp collectors organize a new club to be known as the Philatelic Society. Well, I guess that's enough.

Nov. 10—Another six page paper comes out full of news. Seventy-nine students make the Honor Roll for the first grade period, while the Argonauts, members of the new Latin Club, elect Jane Weil president. One senior, Leland Maxwell, and three juniors, Mary Aldred, Virginia Coverdale and Winifred Mertz, become Quill and Scroll members. Our team has the habit, its latest victory over Auburn having a 13-0 score.

Nov. 17—Say! Sort of forget about the word "habit" above. Well, we still have a top-notch team even though South Side dashed off with the astonishing score of 28-0. The whole Central body is awaiting the recovery of its greatly loved Bob Hawkins, who was injured in the fray. Grimme, Langas and our now recovered Hawkins are named on the all-city grid team. The senior play turned out to be a great success with its grand performances. Students elect subjects for the next semester. Two more boys become presidents—Lawrence Lauer of the Archery Club and Lee Woods of the Harmonica Band.

Nov. 29—United Indoor Circus sets up its ring in the Central Gym. Caldron campaign starts with a vengeance. Sorta short this week but we'll make it up.

Dec. 8—Janorschke will be Scrooge in "The Christmas Carol." While Centralites are still thinking about the successful football mixer, the junior class holds the "Jack Frost Jig." Central cagers rally in their initial basketball game to beat the Portland Panthers, 22-17. Must have been the Thanksgiving turkey and stuff.

Dec. 15—Several days ago the Math Club held a big birthday dinner and had a brilliant program. Bill Robbins, prominent Centralite, is critically ill after having been seriously burned by an explosion. Dick Millikan heads the new Euterpian Music Club. Edith Stapleton wins National Quill and Scroll contest. The ever-active team defeats North Side and Garrett, but bows before Columbia City.

Dec. 21—"The Christmas Carol" comes through with flying colors as do all Miss Suter's productions. The senior class leads the second six weeks' honor roll with 46 out of the 109 successful students in its group. Feels great with another vacation, Santa Claus and everything before us.

Jan. 17—Lots of news now, after all these weeks. Leland Maxwell is the new Spotlight editor as well as one of the 29 new National Honor Society members. He is also named head of the latter group. The language students publish a joint paper. The English students will sell their magazine in a few days. The C.T.C. chooses Mabel Springer president. By the way—the music department gave an excellent concert just before Christmas. The team beats two more rivals, C.C. and Winamac.

Jan. 25—One hundred and forty more minute freshmen throng Central's halls. Anna Marie Schick leads the 114 on the honor roll with 5 A+'s. Winnie Mertz is named Vagabond Club head and Philatelists choose Ed Doell. Central's negative debaters defeat Elmhurst, and the team scores over Winchester and Hartford City, in which latter game Joe Grimme suffers a broken nose.

Feb. 8—Another big Vod-vil over and the audiences declare it was better than ever. Nancy Kover elected president of the new French Club, Anna Marie Schick of Honor Society, and Maxwell of Math Club, while students gaily run through the halls and over to the tea-dance decked with vari-colored bows. New library course started. Central Tigers crush both North and South Side in thrilling net struggles.

Feb. 16—Ward Beers and Dorothy Miller win National Quill and Scroll awards. Team wins at East Chicago but loses to Warsaw and the deadly rivals, South Side Archers, in a breath-taking meet. Dance held after Saturday night game.

Feb. 23—Neat is named city high point man, while the team is victorious over Leo and Avilla. Seniors give a tea-dance now. End of basketball season marked by a win over Elkhart.

Mar. 2—Everything is overshadowed this week by the sectional tournament. No need to remind the readers that Central is defeated in the semi-finals by the Archers who fight on and win the Sectional title.

Mar. 9—All activities except the Regional have slowed down while Hartford City comes through the fray as winners.

Mar. 15—Miss Tonkel back in school after a very serious illness, and everyone is glad to see her. A number of Central students are gone from school to witness the state basketball tournament which will close the season.

Mar. 22—Seniors lead six weeks' honor roll which contains 110 names. Zweig and Ochstein represent Central in county meet of the state discussion contest. Juniors hold tea-dance as numerous seniors name colleges to which they will go.

Apr. 3—As the Caldron goes to press, a great number of activities loom ahead. April 14 will see the students gathered in the gymnasium for the annual Tiger Hop, which will have a Dutch theme. Spotlight will hold a tea dance, the Operetta will be produced, the orchestra will enter a state contest, Best Citizens will be elected, Commencement dance, Junior prom and graduation exercises will be held. Centralites will have plenty to do while waiting for the annual to come out.

seniors a few more days

Coke-ettish Curran——Bill Robbins, Horizontal Kid——Napoleon McKay——Why, Gert!——Ernie, Jimmie and Billie——Carideo Kern——We can't Leif her out——A plus Faster——Gene, Ed and Louie——Three Cake Miller——Clark Gable Janorschke——Ream and her Shadow——Jacobs and Shirey, the big bad wolves.
